

GRAT PAINTER'S EARLY DAYS

Ziem Was a Tailor's Assistant, and Worked His Way to Italy to Study.

Ziem, sitting cross-legged on a table beside a window, worked as a tailor's assistant for several years. His life was thrown into a new channel by the arrival in the courtyard of an Italian family in which there was a handsome, suburn-haired girl, who sang as a belated singer. The father played a hurdy-gurdy, the mother made lace, and a boy performed diverse gymnastic feats. The girl had a fine voice. Her father wanted a new coat and asked the elder Ziem to make it and Ziem to take in a part of the family as lodgers. She took to the boy and girl.

The latter lifted the future painter out of himself with her Venetian songs and accounts of the glorious city to which she hoped soon to return. Her name was Caterina. When she went away Ziem felt miserable. His lost spirit and could not shake of the sort of paralysis that had seized on all his faculties. At last he determined— with the help of his needle and his talent, as he thought, of portrait painting and violinist—to make his way to Venice. They answered to his hopes of going down by water to Marcelline, as he knew no geography, and thence to Rome.

It would be now curious to see the portraits of Sime and Rhone captains of brigades, whose and wood rats that he did for them (id) lines of passage money. In Rome he got in with painters and tourists. The former helped him to enlarge his artistic culture, and the latter took him about as a guide. But Caterina and Venice lay on his heart, and he took the bold resolution of going on foot to the city of his dreams. He so fell in love with it that the first day he went on the Lido that he did not break his heart when he heard that Caterina had not turned up, but had gone to Paris to serve as a model.

THIS IS THE AGE OF WOMAN

Everywhere She is Doing Now What Formerly Was Considered the Work of Man.

It may be difficult to tell what is a woman's age, but unquestionably this is it. Men's colleges into which women have made their way have had to drive them out again in order to give the men a chance at graduation honors. From two pulpits and the bar down to the coal mine and the iron furnace women are doing what used to be regarded as man's work. The literature of the day is everywhere hailing woman in its character and very much of it is the work of women. Men are being told things about women that it was not deemed proper for their fathers to know, and as for themselves, they are being shown up without remorse.

Within a few days illustrations of the feminist revolution, physical and intellectual, have become public. Men is destined to lose even his physical superiority. The superintendent of a hospital in Boston, where 2,000 babies are born annually, says: "We have noticed that girl babies are appearing in this world lately with more real vitality than formerly. The boy babies continue on the average, both in weight and height."

Bird and Beast Sanctuary.

Renowned from all large centers of population a bird and beast sanctuary has been established in the Upper Engadine in Switzerland. This is the Val Cloos, near Zermatt and not far from the Ofen Pass. It is a well wooded spot of considerable area, carefully watched and in the summer continually patrolled by keepers.

One of these, who has just returned to St. Moritz from a visit, found the park completely swayed under to a depth of more than four feet. In it were five herds of chamois, one of which numbered 147 head, besides a great number of roebuck and deer to gather with bears, foxes and other smaller Alpine animals. Flocks of snow hawks were also wintering in the sanctuary with numerous crossbills, ptarmigan and other small birds.

It is hoped that the establishment of this reserve will prevent the threatened extermination of wild beasts and birds in the Alps.

Waste in Coal Range.

Economic waste represented by the coal range was strikingly illustrated in tests made recently at the London electrical exposition. Demonstration proved that the shrinkage of meat when cooked in a coal range is surprisingly great. A leg of mutton weighing eight pounds and eight ounces showed a shrinkage of two pounds and eleven ounces when cooked in the coal range. Whereas a leg of mutton weighing nine pounds showed a loss of one pound and four ounces when cooked in an electric oven. The shrinkage for the gas oven was two pounds and four ounces on an eight pound leg of mutton.

A Reforming Influence.

"That automobile I bought has been doing wonders for me," said Mr. Chukling. "Fresh air and all that sort of thing." It has benefited me morally as well as physically. It has led me to avoid intoxicants and to lead a life that will insure me as beautiful an obituary as possible.

HIS TROUBLE NOT OF HEART

Real Facts in Regard To F. R. Hoffman's Illness. Relief Obtained By Curing His Stomach Ailments.

Waynesville, N. C.—Mr. F. R. Hoffman, of this city, says: "I suffered dreadfully with what I thought was heart trouble, and tried various medicines in vain. After other remedies had failed, Theodore's Black Draught restored me to health. I would not feel safe without Black Draught in the house. I consider it worth its weight in gold. It cured my indigestion, and by this means I was restored to health. I can not express my gratitude for its benefits. Good health depends on the condition of your digestion. Poor digestion and good health do not go together. Theodore's Black-Draught will thoroughly cleanse and set in order your digestive system. It has done this for others, during the past 70 years, and is today the most popular vegetable liver remedy on the market. Try it. (Shown on Theodore's. Price 25c.)"

SAFE-BLOWER'S SMART WORK

Ingenious Operations of a Burglar Who Was After Wealth of Berlin Money Broker.

The confidence of German manufacturers of safes in the resistance of their works against ordinary safe-breaking operations was lately shaken not long ago by the feat of a single robber in Berlin, who operated in this fashion:

In a hotel a room was secured which was situated immediately above the office of a money broker. At night a hole was placed in the ceiling of this office. By the use of a drill and saw a circular piece of the flooring was readily pierced. Thence lay a thick layer of cement. A small tallow candle in this and an umbrella shoved down into the hole below. The umbrella was attached freely from above, and when opened revolved without noise all the fragments of cement which were dislodged as the hole was enlarged to an inch or two the easy passage of a person. By means of a rope ladder the descent was made readily into the office below. The next stage of the thief's work consisted in the bringing down of two cylinders of compressed oxygen and an oxy-acetylene generator charged with carbon oxide and water. With these he was able to produce a blowpipe flame of such intensity that steel fused in it. In the lead in an ordinary gas jet. It required only a brief space of time to melt away so much of the door that the contents of the safe were accessible.

smoking process requires on an average about eight days.

Good Old English Custom.

There was an old-fashioned custom on the English road, which I suspect is now obsolete, or practiced only by the vulgar. Journeys of length being made on horseback, and, of course by brief stages, it was usual always to make a halt on the Sunday in some town where the traveler might attend divine service and his horse have the benefit of the day of rest, the institution of which is an homage to our kinsmen who are profitable to ourselves. A counterpart to this decent practice, and a remnant of old English hospitality, was that the landlord of a principal inn had made his character of a publican on the seventh day, and invited the guests who claimed to be within his walls to take a part of his family beef and pudding. This invitation was usually complied with by all whom distinguished rank did not induce them to think complacent a de-regulation; and the proposal of a bottle of wine after dinner, to drink the landlord's health, was the only recompense ever offered or accepted.—Sir Walter Scott.

The Bosphorus Anchorage.

The Gulf of Bosphorus is a misnomer, as a glance at any good map will show. At the end of the coast takes a sudden trend south for 20 miles, then turns as abruptly to an easterly direction. Near the angle the high coast drops suddenly in a cliffy point, nearly half a mile south of which is the anchorage on a weedy bottom. Twelve miles north is Baidieh, a better shelter, which would be made into a tolerable harbor by a breakwater. If the frontier line of Egypt were carried about four miles to the west Baidieh would be included in Egyptian territory. The Bosphorus anchorage derives its principal value from the fact that it is the nearest point on the Mediterranean to the Black coast, and is thus the sea end of the most direct route through a string of waters to the Sudan. But to describe this uninviting corner of an inhospitable coast as "the finest harbor in these parts," in the words of a contemporary, is not together misleading.

None Left.

Mabel (just engaged).—George said if I refused him he would never propose to any other girl.

His Dear Friend.—Yes; I understand you were the last on the list.

Rather Poor Excuse.

She.—I didn't go to work Friday.

He.—Any excuse?

She.—Why, I had no clothes to wear.

He.—Your hair must be pretty funny if he'd object to that.

Pig's Costly Banquet.

Pat could neither read nor write, and it appeared that he had always kept his records on potatoes by cutting certain marks in them for certain persons and amounts. One day his pig found his way into the room and made a sumptuous meal from the precious "records."

More Than One.

The bald man rushed into the shop, slipped into a chair and roared: "I want a haircut." The astonished barber meditated for a moment and then picking up the scissors, with an insinuation, mockingly inquired: "Which one, sir?"

Her Preference.

First Saleslady.—"Are you going to marry that gentleman that comes here every day?"

Second Saleslady.—"Nope."

I'd rather have a job without a husband than a husband without a job."

—Life.

Playing Safe.

"Did you make up the list of the 20 greatest women that the editor asked you to prepare?"

"Not on your life! I've told at least a hundred women that they were sure of a place on it."

Wisdom From the Bench.

"A man hit me, and I hit him back," said a woman at the Maryborough police court. "Yes," said Mr. Phoenix. "You wouldn't be a woman if you didn't nowadays."—London Express.

Useless to Try.

You can't make a woman whose nose turns up believe that the Grecian type of facial architecture is aristocratic.

Before and After.

Before she is married a girl wants to be somebody's darling. Afterward she appears to desire to be somebody's boss.—Exchange.

It Certainly Does.

"The atom bomb is in its infancy yet." "Then it's a wonderfully precocious infant." "In what way?" "It's already going the pace that kills."

Better to Put Duty First.

It would be better for the nation if people thought more of their duties and less of their rights.

Some Try.

Can a man love a woman he's afraid of?—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Not the Stately Oak.

Many a landed family tree is more shyly underbrush.

WILLIAM A. RADFORD
Editor

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice on the subject of building for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is without doubt the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 173 West Jackson boulevard, Chicago, Ill. and only when convenient, please write.

A very artistic cement story and a half cottage may be built after the design illustrated herewith. The size is thirty six feet six inches in width and thirty feet in length from the front to the back. But three figures, as they read, are somewhat deceiving, as they include the projection, some of which are quite small.

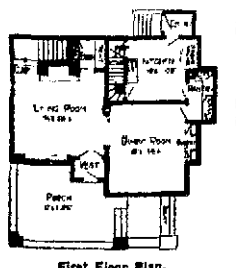

The real size of the house may be estimated better by taking each room by itself, then add the vestibule, but set, pantry, alcove for stove and the back entry way to the kitchen. This is an unusual way to build a cottage house but it is interesting and attractive.

There is such a thing as having a good deal of convenience in a small space and that is exactly what this plan is intended to give. It is on the embodiment of the modern idea that a small house may be made very comfortable attractive and convenient perhaps more so than a much larger house and the first cost as well as after maintenance is a great deal less. In the dining room the arrangement for the buffet or sideboard is such that it does not project into the room. This is a special feature well worth careful study. The buffet itself is set down above to light that side of the room and it contains many convenient compartments for china, drawers for linen and receptacles for all service. It is a combination built in piece of furniture that saves buying a regular sideboard while its capacity is greater and the convenience about double that of the ordinary article.

Coming next to the pantry we have another improvement on the old fashioned way of building pantries. It is done in such a way as to take no room from the house proper. In this respect it follows the plan of the buffet recess but it is made large enough to furnish a passage from the dining room to the kitchen with plenty of shelf room for the storage of pantry necessities.

In the kitchen we find another niche in the outside wall to accommodate a range. Sometimes the range is built into the alcove in such a way as to prevent the accumulation of dust behind it under the hood. I very much wonder at the amount of trash that persistently collects under and around the kitchen stove. You may clean it thoroughly one day and the next day find a dust pan full of would.

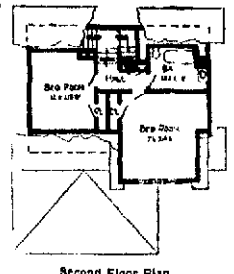

First Floor Plan.

dust hairpins, burnt matches etc. that some limp has deposited there in some mysterious way. Then the next convenience is the built-in entry to the kitchen with a double door protection against cold with another recessed and especially for the ice box. The refrigerator has no business in the kitchen. It is in the way and there is too much heat in the kitchen. Besides the ice man brings in a great deal of dirt every time he delivers ice. With an entry like this a saving is effected in many ways.

With all these kitchen accessories the kitchen itself need not be very large. The plan calls for an open space ten feet by ten feet six inches, which leaves room for considerable framing during the day, but this much room seems all right and necessary because we have four doors a door in each corner. You go down to the cellar outside to the pantry and up the combination stairway all from the kitchen. There is another reason for placing the stairway here. It deadens the noise so you can't hear kitchen work from the large living room.

Every attachment to a machine requires a little extra space. The kitchen is the machinery end of this cottage house and it is a combination of modern improvements in house building.

Second Floor Plan.

ing. A peculiar arrangement of stairs is the bringing together of the front stair which goes up from the living room and the back stair from the kitchen bringing them together on a common landing high enough up to give headroom for a little book or end with a seat or book case at the side and back of the large chimney.

Such nooks are somewhat common in new houses but most of them cut into the living room without returning an equivalent in extra comfort. This book however is different for it occupies a peculiar arrangement of stairs is the bringing together of the front stair which goes up from the living room and the back stair from the kitchen bringing them together on a common landing high enough up to give headroom for a little book or end with a seat or book case at the side and back of the large chimney.

Such nooks are somewhat common in new houses but most of them cut into the living room without returning an equivalent in extra comfort. The Breakfast
Breakfast is the most important meal of your life, for on it depends the enjoyment of each day—and the bodily and mental condition you take to your work.

A good breakfast requires GOOD groceries—cereals, eggs, bacon, coffee and other enjoyable parts of a satisfying meal. But see that they are GOOD. Unsatisfactory food brings depression, uneasiness and a disagreeable day.

Be sure of YOUR day. Use our groceries—the kind that is eaten by the best business men and women in this town.

The prices are as pleasing as the quality.
